GREECE ENTERS WAR ON SIDE OF ALLIES WITH MAXIMUM FORCE OF 360,000 TROOPS

KINGSBURY IN REPLY TO AUTO OF BRAZOS BILL

SAYS THE DURN THING OUGHT TO HAVE SOME PLACE TO REST.

KEEP HIM OFF AUSTIN BUT ELSEWHERE O. K.

SENDS OUT PETITIONS ASKING AUSTIN MERCHANTS TO URGE ORDINANCE.

Comes now one Russel Kingsbury, keeper of the corporation court of Waco, to assume a solution of the dilema of Brazos Bill and his Tin Henry.

Brazos Bill, it will be remembered asked on the front page of the Morning News yesterday where on earth could he park his four-lung Hank when a-shopping in Waco.

Now Brazos Bill, by the way was christened at birth with the name of W. M. Davis, has both in the minds of the people and city authorities, a just complaint. As the fable goes Bill gasolined into Waco the other day, wallet optimistically filled with thoughts of trade with local merchants. Bill parked his car at one point on the thoroughfares of the Rose City of Texas, bought himself various articles, and returned to find a custodian of the law "armed" as Bill notes to the News "with a club large enough to whip a cow pen full of such fellows as me."

"Keep Moving."

He was told that the arm of the law was as from the square to Ninth avenue and there was No Chance so far as that Tin Lizzy was concerned. She'd have to keep moving.

Bill tried it again—Bill tried it several times, and still the arm of the law reached out to him. It looked like the Panhandle as the only Solution.

Bill asked the News what to do and Judge Kingsbury was ready to answer before the sun reached 90 degrees Monday.

Judge Kingsbury has put into circulation petitions hoped eventually to be signed by every merchant on Austin avenue asking for an ordinance which will forever and a-day prohibit the parking of automobiles any place on Austin avenue from the square to Ninth street. Elsewhere it is O. K. is Kingsbury's intention the proposed ordinance should read.

Petitions Signed.

The petitions were liberally signed yesterday and when fairly complete will be presented the city council.

As the law now stands auto owners can park their cars any place in the business district for a single hour with the exception of the half block between Austin and Fifth street to the first alley. This law, it is claimed, is of little effect, however, for as fast as one man's hour is up, another automobile moves into that space for an hour, and the fear is expressed at the city hall that aspecial appropriation for chalk will be necessary if the hourly markings continue.

This then is the answer to Brazos Bill and the likes of him, with sincere hopes of those who are back of the move that his pocketbook will continue to come to Waco.

TRIPLE MURDER NEAR JOHNSTON, PA., IS NOW CHARGED TO TOMPKINS

By the Associated Press.

Johnstown, Pa., July 16.—Authorities who are investigating the mysterious deaths of Edumnd I. Humphries, a coal operator, Mrs. Humphries and their son, Edmund, Jr., on a country road near here yesterday were tonight completing identification of an automatic revolver which they declare was found late today in a clump of bushes at the roadside near the place where the tragedy is believed to have occured.

Detectives are working on the theory that the weapon is the property of Geo. C. Tompkins, of Philadelphia, who was formally charged with murder of the three persons.

According to word received here tonight, Sheriff Mulhollen of Cambria county, received information from Tomkin's business associates to the effect that Tomkins had borrowed a sum of money from Mrs. Humphries with which to purchase an interest in a newly organized coal company.

By Associated Press.

Atlanta, July 16.—Mrs. Emma B. Manchester, supreme guardian of the Woodmen Circle, launched the preliminary round in the fight to curtail her powers being made in the convention here today, when a resolution seeking to have counsel representing both sides of the controversy each make forty-minute speeches on the issue was defeated by a vote of 40 to 28. Mrs. Manchester's friends voted for the resolution while the opposition voted against it on the ground that it involved too much expense.

United States Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, supreme banker of the order, told the convention today he could not be present.

ITALIANS GET A DOSE OF THEIR OWN MEDICINE IN WAR ON NEGRO LABOR

By Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 15.—More than thirty Italian laborers who tried to chase a group of negro workmen from Camp Mead, the national army encampment at Admiral, Ga., today, themselves were ousted by a detachment of regular troops on guard there, put on a Baltimore and Ohio train, bound for this city, and told that if they returned they would be severely dealt with.

NICE SHOWER IN WACO; OTHER POINTS SPRINKLED; EDDY REMAINING DRY

For the second time in this month Jupiter Pluvius has been a welcome visitor. A mist began to fall in Waco at about 5:30 yesterday afternoon, but did not amount to much. The long distance operator last night reported that rains had fallen at Whitney, China Springs, Temple, and very light rains were reported from West and Lorena, while it was the lot of Eddy to remain dry.

TEUTONIC ALLIES MEET REVERSE ON BOTH FRONTS—LOSSES HEAVY

RUSS ARE HOLDING THEIR OWN WITH SPORADIC GAINS WHILE VIOLENT DRIVE OF KAISER'S MEN IS CHECKED IN CHAMPAGNE REGION.

By Associated Press.

Again the Teutonic allies have suffered reverses; in the loss to the Russians of a part of the village of Lodziany in the Lomnica river region of Galicia; in the repulse of an attack by the Russians northeast of Kaiufz and in the Champagne region of France, where the French drove them from positions they had recaptured, inflicting heavy casualties.

News Scarce in Rumania.

From Riga on the Baltic to the Rumanian frontier the Russians and Austro-Germans along the entire front are engaged in battle, which except in Galicia, where the Russians continue to develop their advantage or hold back threats of the Teutons, little has become known of the operations. Not asone have the Russians in their drive in Galicia made considerable gain of terraine, but their captures of men, guns and war material have been enormous.

In the Champagne.

The Germans in Champagne have been attempting with large oodies of men to recapture positions taxen from them recently near Mont Haut and the Teton. They were entirely repulsed, the Teutons suffering heavy casualties. At Mont Haut, during a night-long battle, their foes were momentarily successful in regaining nearly all the ground they had lost. Violent counter attacks launched by the French, however, drove them back.

Considerable fighting has taken place between the British and Germans on the north front in Belgium, but apparently the infantry attacks are still in the nature of raiding enterprises.

Once More Italians.

The probable recommencement of heavy fighting along the Austro-Italian front seems apparent from the latest official communication from Rome. Heavy bombardments have been begun along the entire front, with the Italian gunners doing effective work in destroying enemy positions at various points.

Comparative quiet prevails on the Macedonian front.

Special to The News.

Washington, July 16.—With drawing of lots for the selective draft army awaiting only completion of exemption machinery in a few scattered sections of the country, officials are anxious that registrants take every opportunity to inform themselves thoroughly regarding exemption regulations so as to reduce to a minimum the confusion to be cleared up after designations are made.

So that easy access may be had to the list of registration numbers in the hands of local boards, the provost marshall telegraphed the governors of all states asking that instead of posting the lists at the board's offices they be placed in some central office such as "post" headquarters.

Only eleven states tonight had reported their organization complete. Officials think the drawing date will not be earlier than Saturday.

GERMAN PRESS FLAYS HOLLWEG FOR DECEPTIONS

SPECIFICALLY MENTION DINNER TO GERARD AND SUB NOTES

By Associated Press.

Copenhagen, July 16.—In their reviews of the administration of the retiring German chancellor, Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg, the German papers comment prominently in an uncomplimentary manner on his treatment of relations with America.

In the Vossiche-Zeitung George Bernhard openly accuses Hollweg and his foreign secretary Zimmerman of having played a double game with Washington, making war inevitable by attempts to deceive and mislead President Wilson in regard to the policies and intentions of Germany.

Herr Bernhard intimates that the submarine policy if managed skillfully might not have lead to war with the United States had not these diplomats unofficially increased the danger and destroyed every chance of avoiding a break.

He says they encouraged the idea of mediation by President Wilson in America, but did nothing to make it acceptable at home, launched the proposal to Mexico to turn against the United States while negotiating with Mr. Wilson and arranged the dinner to Ambassador Gerard and approved the text of the speeches delivered at the dinner, and then astounded the president and the ambassador with the submarine note.

As to this, Herr Bernhard says, much more might be written if patriotic consideration did not forbid.

RACE RIOTING IN FLAT RIVER LEAD DISTRICTS IS FAST DIMINISHING

Flat River, Mo., July 16.—Danger of a renewal of race rioting in the lead belt of Southeastern Missouri diminished today as a result of the stern attitude of national guard officers and the action of Sheriff Adams in swearing in twelve deputies. About half the men in the Flat River section resumed operations today but worked short handed and as a result of the exodus of the foreign board laborers. In other towns of the lead belt all mines were running. The warning of a mob to the foreign residents of Bonne Terre that they must get out of town by 10 o'clock this morning did not produce the expected result.

SENATE ROW NOW IS OVER HOOVER

EXHAUSTING OTHER OBJECTIONS THEY SEEK TO PUT HIM FROM OFFICE.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 15.—A wrangle over President Wilson's appointment of Herbert C. Hoover as food administrator occupied virtually all of the day's debate in the senate on the food control bill, but in the meantime considerable progress of a compromise amendment was made by the leaders in bi-partisan conferences.

For more than two hours Senator Reed criticised Hoover, declaring his residence abroad had kept him out of touch with American ideals. Senator Theland replied defending the food administrator as a patriot and efficient official.

Senator Reed declared that if the government is to spend millions for food control administration an authority should be vested in somebody "who knows something about it."

5 BILLION MORE IS NOW PROPOSED LOAN TO ENTENTE POWERS

Special to The News.

Washington, July 16.—Unless the unforseen develops, congress will be asked before adjournment of the present session to authorize another gigantic loan to the allies. The present authorization of $3,000,000,000 will be exhausted in four months at the rate at which the government is lending to the entente government.

Indications are that the second authorization will be now less than the first and may go as high as $5,000,000,000.

There is every indication to believe that the administration's policy of financing the allies for purchases they make in this country will be continued during the period of the government, and that the vast amount to be loaned in the future will be loaned as in the past at the same rate of interest the American government will have to pay for the money and on the security of the entente government's bonds to be deposited in the treasury.

GREEK MINISTER AT PARIS GIVES ENTENTE PROMISES BACKED BY VENEZELOS.

REGARDS SELF BELLIGERENT AND WILL ACT ACCORDINGLY

ARMY NOW CONSIDERABLY DEMOBILIZED BUT CAN BE BROUGHT TO 360,000.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 16.—Uncertainty as to Greece's status in the world war was cleared away today with the receipt of official information that the Greek government has not only severed relations with all four of the central powers but is actually in a state of war with them. Information has reached the state department that the Greek minister at Paris has notified the state government that Greece feels herself a belligerent and will act accordingly.

He said it was not necessary to issue a formal declaration of war for the government feels it is bound by the prevoius one issued at Saloniki by Premier Venezelos, who took with him to Athens all the responsibilities and committments of the temporary Saloniki government.

As a belligerent Greece is expected to lose no time to mobilize her forces and join effectively in the allied operations in the Balkans.

The strength of the Venezelos army is placed at 60,000 men and the remnant of the former regular army, while not over 30,000 men, has at times been mobilized to a total of 200,000 men and is capable of reaching 300,000 if munitions are provided. The regulars practically were demobilized by the allies when former King Constantine held the organization as a threat to the allies' rear, but can quickly be called to the colors again.

CANADIANS GIVE ENEMY SOME GAS BOMBS AND GERMANS FAIL TO ADVANCE

By Associated Press.

Paris, July 15.—The western part of Ypens was subjected to a gas attack early this morning. The first time the gas cylinder was projected into the German positions was about 1 o'clock, and projectiles and bombs loaded with deadly vapors were sprayed upon the Germans almost two hours. The enemy attempted to cause a cessation of the attacks by putting an artillery and gas shell barrage on that part of the front where he supposed the gas was being circulated. In this he finally failed and the operations proceeded until the available drums had been exhausted.

ANOTHER SHIP ROW IMINENT

WHO IS TO BE SUPREME—GOETHALS OR DENMAN, IS QUESTION.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 16.—The government's merchant ship building program was halted today when Major General Goethals, manager of the shipping board fleet corporation, postponed his plans to requisition all steel merchant ships under construction and to let contracts for building two government-owned plants for producing fabricated steel ships.

At General Goethal's office it was said that the postponement was due to a request by Chairman Denman of the shipping board that a short delay be given the board for time to go over the program.

Today's development is regarded as bringing to a direct issue the question as to who is to have supreme authority in carrying out the building program, Denman or Goethals.

SWISS ACCUSE ITALIANS WITH ENEMY TRADING

By Associated Press.

Berne, Switzerland, July 16—Regarding American allegations that Switzerland shipped cotton and Italian fruits to Germany the Bund publishes a precise statement with the object of showing that Switzerland has exported no cotton since autumn, 1915. Control of Switzerland's trade and commerce then arranged with the entente, says the paper, has always been strictly observed, rendering such exportations quite impossible. The fruit traffic was continued, says the Bund, to a certain extent to the knowledge and consent of the Italian government. It explains that there was a kind of compensation traffic between Italy and Germany during the war, Italy sending fruits in return for German agricultural machinery. It is pointed out that Switzerland had no right or no reason to prevent this traffic which was conducted for the most part by Italian merchants.

CHINA SPRINGS HAD VIEW "SO DIFFERENT"

There is at least one community in McLennan county where on Monday farmers in most cases did not want any rain; had had enough for the present, thank you.

That community was China Springs, northwest of Waco some eleven miles. China Springs had a rain July 3 and a soaker on July 4, amounting to several inches, according to reports, and many farmers wanted a little more time to work out their cotton. However, the experience of China Springs as to rain was not duplicated in many other parts of the county Monday, perhaps in no other part of the county.

EXIT LAST OF LIVERY STABLES AT TEMPLE; JITNEY TO BE SUPREME

Special to The News.

Temple, July 16.—Exit the last livery stable in Temple. With the conversion of the Hobbs stable into a garage, the time-honored business is practically extinct in this city. The motor car and good roads finally have wrought its finish. One by one the best liveries have succumbed to the pressure of the two forces referred to, but for a long time the Hobbs barn held out. Now it, too, has recognized the inevitable and hereafter will have accommodations only for the "gas horse." Only recently the city of Temple dispensed with its teams of mules and replaced them with trucks. The county government has also gone in for tractors and trucks. Farmers are daily exhibiting livelier interest in tractors and soon there will be no sphere in which man's best friend can find a niche in this section.

YOUNG PACIFIST FACES BIG DAD

New York, July 15.—"Chief, where is that boy of mine that wouldn't register?" called out a raw-boned man, 6 feet 2, as he strode into United States Marshal McCarthy's office in the federal building. He wore a broad brimmed soft hat, a blue flannel shirt, open at the neck; corduroy trousers, a black coat and high boots.

He introduced himself as Joseph Allen, a mountain farmer near Ammi, Clay county, Kentucky. He gave the marshal a vise-like hand grasp that made even that big-sized man wince, then he explained that he had come to take back to the old Kentucky home one of his sons, John Calhoun Allen, recently arrested here for failing to register, and later pronounced by an alienist to be suffering from a mental trouble.

"Two of my boys," the father said, "have volunteered and one is in the army now, and if I had a thousand I'd be glad to have them all fight for our grand old country."

The marshal had young Allen brought from the Tombs where Judge Meyer had directed him to be kept until he had heard from his relatives.

"My son," said the old mountaineer, laying his hand on the young man's uncovered head, "if I thought you were all right in your mind I would feel like standing you up and shooting you thru your heart for refusing to register. What do you mean, anyway, by disgracing Kentucky?"

The son at first still balked at registering, saying "wisdom" directed him, but gave way under urging by his father and the marshal. The latter then took the prisoner before the court had the charge dropped and assumed responsibility for his return south.

Then young Allen registered and he and his father started out to see the city's wonders. The mountaineer never was here before.

CURLEY UNABLE TO GET INJUNCTION ON WILLARD

By Associated Press.

New York, July 13.—Application of Jack Curley, for an injunction to restrain Jess Willard heavy weight champion of the world from appearing in conection with his wild west show was denied in the supreme court here today.

Curley contended that a contract entered into by Willard and himself, preceding the fight in Havana, Cuba, with Jack Johnson at which Willard won the championship, restrained Willard from public apeparances except under Curley's management until September next.

REICHSTAG WILL FIND WAY HARD IN NEW REGIME

APPOINTMENT OF MICHAELIS MEANS DEATH TO DEMOCRATIC MOVE.

By the Associated Press.

Copenhagen, July 15.—If the German press correctly reflected public opinion on the event, the appointment of George Michaellis as imperial chancellor will be associated with the death of the movement to parliamentarize the imperial administration by giving Reichstag member seats either in the cabinet or in the new controlling body to be created such as the proposed imperial council of representatives.

The press of Bavaria was quick to point out that a parliamentary minister could not be introduced without upsetting the whole federal character of the empire which finds expression in the supreme Bundesrath.

Here's a man who would rather walk miles than read the "For Rent ads" in the Waco Morning News.

Possibly he's had orders not to come home unless successful in his search.

At any rate he has "house-hunted" in the old house to house way until he's ready to drop.

It might just as well be realized first as last that it can't be done—that nine times out of ten you're doomed to failure.

Why? Fo rthe very simple reason that the landlords nowadays advertise homes to be vacated before the present tenants move and actually find new tenants through the want ads who move in the day the others move out.

Then where's there a chance to squeeze in—unless you follow the same wise plan and read Waco Morning News "Houses for Rent" ads.

The Girl's Job

ARE YOU TRAINED?

By Jessie Roberts.

The bureau of education in the department of the niterior at Washington, D. C., has just issued an extremely interesting bulletin. It suggests that extension work among city women is very much needed. Farm women and women in isolated communities have been given a great deal of help in an educative sense, but city women have been left to shift for themslves.

"Evry woman should have a working knowledge of home economics," says the bulletin.

It emphasizes how little use the untrained woman is to herself or her community. Ignorance is dangerous in these times. Waste is criminal. The woman who is trained will not waste.

If this extension work is taken up seriously it will mean there must be a large force of young women ready to teach it. It is a fine opportunity for great usefulness, and for an interesting profession ,and one that many women should strive for this year, both in the summer school and in the many special classes and courses that are being offered. The government is behind this work. It will be worth her while for any woman niterested to send for the bulletin.

W. B. MORRISON DRUG CO. TAKES AGENCY FOR PEP SYSTEMIC PILLS

THESE PILLS MADE FROM A FORMULA PRESCRIBED BY NOTED PHYSICIANS FOR MANY YEARS.

W. B. Morrison, proprietor of the Old Corner Drug store in Waco, has just secured the agency for Pep Systemic Pills, and expects them to become the biggest selling tonic for toning up sluggish people that has ever been introduced in this city.

Pep Systemic Pills have been creating wonderful results. The formula used in the production of these pills has been used for many years by physicians in prescribing a tonic for building up run-down systems and for such ailments as nervousness, rheumatism, impotence, loss of appetite, impure blood, constipation, sallow complexions, senile weakness and as a general tonic for strengthening the body.

Nearly every one who takes these pills says, "They made me feel just like a boy again."

Not only are Pep Systemic Pills more convenient to take than liquid tonics, but better results have also been reported by all who have used them. Being easily dissolved after taken into the stomach, they are far superior to hard, compressed tablets, which so often pass through the system undissolved.

Pep Pills, which contain iron in BLAUD'S MASS form, which is conceded to be the most assimilable form of iron salts, are reinforced by other valuable nerve, blood and alternative tonics, make a combination that is scoring marvelous results for run-down systems, giving color to the skin and producing a healthy, robust body.

Try a box of these pills. Start taking them at once and see how much "pep" and vigor they will put into you after taking just a few of them. They can now be had at W. B. Morrison's Drug Store. Address all mail orders and correspondence to W. B. Morrison Drug Co., Waco, Texas.

Little Stories for Bedtime

Jimmy Skunk Gets Out.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

To every trouble, small and great,
There comes an ending soon or late.

Just remember that the next time you are in trouble. It is always so. Sometimes it is hard to believe that there will be an end, but there will. It was hard for Jimmy Skunk to believe that his troubles would end, but they did. That is that particular trouble did. He had walked round and round and round Farmer Brown's cellar looking for a way to get out, but there was no way. He had stared up at that little window through which he had entered and had wished for wings that he might fly up to it, which was foolish. And he had grown very, very gungry, and all the time was growing hungrier. You see he had been down in that cellar two days with nothing to eat.

It was just a little before time for jolly, round, red Mr. Sun to go to bed behind the Purple Hills that Jimmy heard a noise outside that little window.

He Paid No Attention to Farmer Brown's Boy at All.

Of course he looked up to see what had made it. Something was coming in throughh that window. At first he couldn't make out what it was and hid behind a barrel. He knew that whatever it was Farmer Brown's boy had something to do with it. He knew this because he could hear Farmer Brown's boy outside and sometimes could catch glimpses of him.

After a while all was still. Jimmy waited a little longer and then crept out to se ewhat had come in through that window, and he was all ready to use that little bag of scent if it was anything that seemed to promise danger. But all he found was a long board that reached from the floor of the cellar up to the little window. Jimmy sat down and looked at it suspicionsly. Then he went round to the other side and did the same thing. Finally he ventured near enough to sniff at it. It was just a board, that was all.

"Now what can that be for?" thought Jimmy and scratched his head. "Whatever it is for it would be just the thing for me if I could climb like Happy Jack Squirrel."

He went around to the end where he could look up the whole length of that long board. There he made a discovery. There were little crosspieces all the way up that board. Jimmy loked at them thoughtfully. "I believe I can walk up that without tumbling off," thought he. "Anyway I'll try it."

So Jimmy started up the long board and he found that those little crosspieces made it very easy for him to walk without danger of falling off. Up and up and up he walked and presently he was at the window. Not far away was Farmer Brown's boy and he was grinning until all the freckles on his face seemed to run together into one big freckle.

"How do you like my ladder, Jimmy Skunk?" he cried.

But Jimmy made no reply. He paid no attention to Farmer Brown's boy at all. In fact, he did what he rarely does—he hurried. He hurried straight over to the grass and there he began to catch grasshoppers as fast as ever he could. He was hungry, was Jimmy Skunk.

Farmer Brown's boy watched him and laughed.

"Go it, Jimmy!" he cried. "If you keep on catching grasshoppers at that rate I guess you will pay me for all the trouble I went to to make that ladder for you."

Then he pulled up that long board and closed the window. As for Jimmy Skunk he went right on catching grasshoppers just as if he were out on the Green Meadows instead of in Farmer Brown's dooryard with Farmer Brown's boy and Mrs. Brown and Farmer Brown and Bowser the Hound and Black Pussy all watching him. Jimmy Skunk is nothing if not independent.

For the American Woman

HER MOTHER!

By Mary E. Walter.

This is what a woman of forty-two said to me the other day:

"The sweetest memories I have brought with me through life are of my mother's companionship in my childhood and youth. We four children, my brothers and sister and I, always regarded mother as one of us. This fact, I see now, was not a matter of our childish choice, but because mother made herself one of us. She was a child herself in sympathy, but in broad understanding she was a woman and an unusual woman.

"From the time we children began to think and understand, our mother, as one of our dearest chums, had our entire confidence. As far back as I can remember I used to go to "mamma" with everything I had to say, every thought, even every little naughty confession. I went to her not through fear, not because I "had to go," not with any idea of tattling, but because going to her was the most natural thing in the world, and because mother made it seem natural and always gave me and the others a sure welcome. Never once did mother receive me with a reprimand for what I said, or with the shock at what I thought, that would have made the child mind timid about going with another confidence. She listened to all I had to say, and then lovingly presented the right side of my little problem in self-development and let me work it out, or else she advised another course. There was seldom a 'must' or 'mustn't' and never a scolding. She respected our personality and dignity even though we were children and her children. Likewise, her own dignity never had to be asserted and was never challenged. She felt herself responsible for our upbringing, and to that end saw the need of making our little minds like open books to her.

"My mother realized, even when we were littlest, that we were growing men and women; and she kept apace with our growth. The sympathy and understanding she gave to her babies, she gave also to her girls and boys and to her grown-up youths and maidens. Our chumminess established in the beginning was cherished through all our years at home. I do not remember having anything to conceal from mother and this I know was not through any virtue of my own, but through the wisdom of mother's training. We were by no means "overmothered," as are some children. We had all the normal wholesome experience of ordinary youngsters.

"My mother never made any mysterious barrier around the facts of life as they presented themselves to our questioning minds. She was honest in her answers, and very wise. So the "secrets" that children circulate among themselves had no attraction for us. For instance, mother once overheard her son, Willie, six, asked by another boy if he knew certain things about the beginning of life. Willie replied with a dignity that put to shame the other child, "My mother tells me about such things!" So we were kept out of the "messes" that so many young ones get into, because of this very frankness between us and mother, because in our joys and sorrows, in our fear, our shame, our curiosity, even in our love affairs, we had a chum and a confidant in our mother."

Mrs. Sarah Catherine Lattimore An Appreciation

By Rev. F. S. Groner.

The home-going of the subject of this brief sketch removes from our midst one of the greatest and truest women that ever lived, loved and labored in Texas. Her life was its own most eloquent eulogy—fruitful in abundant labors, faithful to every task, gifted in capacity for large services and strong and able to carry to complete realization all of the varied and numerous demands made upon her great and aggressive personality.

Mrs. Sarah Catherine Lattimore was born in Alabama, January 1, 1841. She died at 1:40 o'clock Friday morning, July 13, 1917, making her exact age 76 years, 6 months and 12 days. She had been in Waco about ten days visiting her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Spencer, when she suddenly became ill and was removed to the Providence sanitarium last Sunday afternoon, where an operation was performed. Following the operation she lingered until early Friday morning when the end came.

Mrs. Lattimore was educated in Judson Female Institute, Marion, Ala., from which she graduated as valedictorian of her class in 1857. Howard College in the same city was the alma mater of Rev. John Lee Lattimore, to whom she was married two years after her graduation. Her husband was a well known Baptist minister, himself a man of superior endowment and kingly gifts, useful and faithful as a minister of Jesus, until his death in 1887. Upon the death of her husband the responsibilities of her family largely rested on her but the epigoncies of this new and trying situation she met with admirable fortitude and consummate wisdom and has guided to womanhood and womanhood's estate a family of noble sons and daughters.

Mrs. Lattimore had been a resident of Texas for more than forty years, and had resided at Dublin since 1884. She was one of the best known and best loved women in Texas, and was one of the most highly cultured and accomplished women of her time. She was long active and influential in religious and scholastic circles, an author of ability and a leader whose lofty qualities or womanhood and positive, sterling character and queenly graces invested her with a power seldom possessed by one of her sex.

She was the mother of eight children, all of whom are educated and talented and are especially known for moral beauty of character. A remarkable family—one of the best known in Texas—every member of which has a name for noble worth, highest honor, and valiant and faithful service to humanity and to God. Her children are: The late Prof. J. C. Lattimore, for many years a member of the faculty of Baylor university and for seventeen years the honored and revered superintendent of the public schools of Waco; Senator O. S. Lattimore of Fort Worth, well known as a lawyer and statesman and a leader in the activities of the Baptist denomination; Samuel H. Lattimore of Muskogee, Okla.; Mrs. R. B. Spencer; Mrs. J. M. Higginbotham and Mrs. C. S. Faust of Dublin; Mrs. George C. Butte of Austin. Her sister, Mrs. Nannie E. Boggess, resident of Waco many years, now lives at Dallas. There are also three brothers, Judge J. M. Shivers, Poplarville, Miss.; E. D. Shivers, Marion, Ala., and D. W. Shivers, Montevalle, Ala.

Mrs. Lattimore, though an accomplished and gifted woman in the busy world of affairs, was pre-eminently a mother—a Christian mother—whose home was her kingdom and whose throne was to rule aright and to train in the nurture and fear of God her household. Her children reveal her with a deathless devotion, they account her the greatest and noblest of mothers and will forever call her blessed.

Her friends—and they are legion—will mourn her home-going, but will hold in cherished and sacred memory her saintly and beautiful character. She walked with God, and was not, for God took her.

The F. M. Compton Undertaking company shipped the body to Dublin where it will be interred this afternoon. There was a brief service yesterday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Spencer. The service was conducted by Rev. F. S. Groner. The pallbearers here were F. M. Allen, J. J. Durham, C. K. Durham, E. R. Nash, Jr., C. A Kelley, J. F. Wells, J. E. Turner, and Dr. S. C. Gage.

"WACO'S GREATEST DEPARTMENT STORE"

COLUMBIA RECORDS

"Marching Through Georgia," sung with "a spirit that will start the world along with it," is Morton Adkin's contribution to Columbia's repertory of patriotic recordings.

The "good old bugle" sounds a thrilling introduction. And Mr. Adkins' powerful, resonant baritone moves in spontaneity with the words of the song, reflecting a goodly measure of the superb vocal strength with which those "fifty thousand strong" must have sung "Marching Through Georgia."

Mr. Arkins can well be proud of this record addition to his famous repertory, unsurpassed by any living singer, including over sixty standard and operatic roles, all the oratorios and no fewer than 3,000 songs, in English, French, German and Italian.

America's "Vigilantes" never wove into verse or speech a more superb patriotic appeal than that embodied in Meacham's "American Patrol," recently recorded by Prince's band for the Columbia Graphophone company.

The resolute tread of undaunted feet and the measured rhythm of mounted cavalry is heard in the introduction. And as the intrepid melody whirls into the strains of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," the memory graven words, "Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue!" leap spontaneously to the lips of the hearer.

Then follows a stirring fife and drum selection that is lost in alively "Yankee Doodle" finale.

That even the popular song is doing its bit to stimulate recruiting is evidenced by a new Columbia recording entitled "It's Time for Every Boy to Be a Soldier," sung by the Peerless Quartette.

A challenging bugle introduction, strains of "Yankee Doodle" and lusty cheers for a "nation governed by the people" makes this call to the lads "twixt love and duty" one of pulse-quickening effect.

Columbia has announced another recording by the famed Cincinnati Symphony orchestra—the languorously beautiful "Barcarolle," from Barbier's "Tales of Hoffmann."

The baton of Dr. Kunwald, the very able director of this stupendous ensemble, seems to have become a fairy wand that bewitches each player with the spell of a beauteous Venetian night, so ethereally beautiful and ineffably peaceful is the blended tonal effect! The lovely intermezzo is timed to the gliding rhythm of the gondolier's mesmeric chant. As the title suggests, the "Barcarolle" was originally a gondoliera of old Venice.

It is doubtful if this splendid symphony orchestra has ever given a better performance than this record version of the "Barcarolle."

That one does not have to be American born to feel the soul of America's Southland melodies is most beautifully demonstrated by a Columbia double-disc recording of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" and "Old Black Joe," sung by the great Belgian baritone, Louis Graveure.

Nor does one have to be born a Virginian to master its "Ole Virginny" darkey dialect, as Mr. Graveure's true-to-life darkey vocalism proves.

Graveure has added to the mournful sweetness of these beloved songs the new appeal of his glorious voice and his rare gift of sympathetic expression.

Those who like to improvise novel dance steps will find tuneful inspiration in "All Blues Medley," a Columbia recording by the unique Saxo Sextette.

The first selection of the medley is "Hesitation Blues" and the second number is "Joyman Blues"—an ideal combination for the dance contest.

If Chauncey Olcott hadn't been born in Buffalo and American cooks were not famed for their Irish stews, that rollicking popular song, "You Don't Have to Come from Ireland to Be Irish" might never have been written.

But thanks to Chauncey Olcott, the cooks and a tenor by the name of M. J. O'Connell, we have one of the best Irish brogue song recordings ever issued by Columbia.

As the composer's name, Grant, also proves, you don't have to be born in the Land of the Shamrock to compose a good Irish song, with a melody as pleasing to the ear as Irish blarney.

"Love o' Mike" is responsible for one of the best Columbia dance records of the year: a fox-trot adaptation of "I Wonder Why," one of the song hits from that delightful "vehicle" of haunting melody and lovely femininity.

Prince's band plays the trot with a dashing bravura that savors of the military. And cymbal and bell passages sound a merry duet above the perfectly timed chorus of strings and brasses.

One of those too infrequent waltz songs that captivate the ear and cling to the memory is Irving Berlin's "The Road That Leads to Love," recently announced in record form by the Columbia Graphophone company.

Mr. Berlin has blended romance, love and philosophy into a happy theme that makes the heart indeed feel young, and has set it to a most appealing melody, with caressing violin overtones.

George Wilson, whose fine tenor is especially adapted to songs of romance, is the singer.

How to steal a kiss 'though the girl be surrounded by relatives is told in the melodious "advice to the lovelorn" song, "Meet Me at the Station, Dear," from "The Passing Show of 1917," just announced in record form by Columbia.

That famed ensemble of clever male vocalists, the Knickerbocker quartette, sings the song with a very evident appreciation that suggests they may have practiced what they preach.

A one-step recording that borrows its title from the old-time name of the present Hawaiian Islands—"On the Sandwich Isles," and suggests the primitive music of that delightful land of romance, may be found on a late Columbia dance list.

"Cross My Heart and Hope to Die" and "Now's the Time" add a piquant touch of real American ragtime to the spirited one-step, which is played by Prince's band with characteristic vim and vigor.

"Georgia," another one of those catchy, tuneful "good-bye, I'm on my way" songs, comes from the Columbia laboratories in the form of a tenor duet by Robert Lewis and George Wilson, both extremely popular with record "fans."

"Georgia" is a Southern lass who embodies the radiance of Georgia sunshine and the charm of Southern roses. And it is for her sweet sake that "Someone" is "on his way."

SHORT ONES.

Brusiloff is putting the rush in Russia. Berlin papers please copy.

It will be a great day when we write it "ex-Kaiser Wilhelm"—and a better day for Germany, as well.

Athletics, too, have profited by the war. There's the new sport of water baseball in America and air polo over the trenches in Europe.

Censorship may cheerfully be looked upon as only another form of our national war on waste—this time in words and their destructive effects.

UNDER THE GUISE OF PATRIOTISM WE MUST NOT PERMIT THE EXPLOITATION OF OUR CHILDREN.

THIS world war into which we have entered to make the world safe for democracy must not be allowed to destroy any of the safeguards we have by slow, painful steps erected for the cause of democracy.

Aside from the strain and stress of battle danger lurks in every war. The unsleeping forces of green and selfishness are always on watch to regain lost ground.

Much has been said and rightly so as to how this country can profit from the experience of those other great democracies—England and France. Our allies can teach us much about warfare in the trenches and on the seas. They can also give us much guidance concerning matters at home.

And one of the lessons the allies can teach us is that we must not throw our children into the furnace of war. There must be no wholesale suspension of restrictions of the hours children are permitted to labor. There must be no let-up in child welfare work. There must be no pariysis of school systems.

At the beginning of the war, in England and France, in the frantic endeavor to increase the industrial output necessary for carrying on the struggle, children were thrown into the factories as if they were so much fuel for a fire. The cry was that everyone, even the children, must do their bit.

And then came the aftermath. Young girls and boys soon showed the physical strain of long hours of confinement in the factories, whether doing day work or night work. Education was being neglected. Morals were being affected.

England and France were fighting to make the liberties of the next generations secure and, while doing so, were denying those very generations the chance to grow up strong in body, educated in mind and clean in spirit. The result was there had to be a speedy return to restriction of child labor, to enforcement of school laws and to all safeguards necessary for child life.

The danger England and France faced and speedily took steps to overcome, is facing us now. Already in highly industrialized states like New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New York there have been "defense" proposals to suspend or repeal child labor laws which were put upon the statute books only after the bitterest fight with special interests. If not promptly checked, this move will spread.

There is no excuse for enslaving the weak bodies of growing children.

AN INSURANCE POLICY FOR EVERY SOLDIER AND SAILOR.

IN the old days when our country called men to the flag, they rallied to the colors, not knowing what would become of their dear ones, if death took them on the field of battle.

Months or years after their death, congress might or might not provide for their dependents by granting a pension. This not only led to uncertainty and hardship for the families of men who laid down their lives for their country, but to huge pension scandals.

The present administration wisely proposes to avoid the pension burden and, at the same time, render real justice to very man it calls into war service. In brief, the plan is for the government to go into the life and accident insurance business to protect its armed forces, just as it went into the marine insurance business to protect American ships which hazarded the submarine-infested seas.

As tentatively worked out, every soldier and sailor will automatically be insured for $4,000 without cost to himself. A scale of indemnities is also to be worked out, to cover various injuries a man may receive during wartime. Such insurance will take care of the man if he is wounded and survives, and will make some provision for his family if he is wounded and dies.

It is an enlightened plan. It is humane. It is just.

When selective conscription is set in motion, many young men will be called into the armies who are at present protected in their states by workmen's compensation laws. It would be manifestly unfair for the government to take them into a service in which the hazards are far greater and then refuse to give them the protection their own state had given them.

But there is an even more important element to be considered and that is the morale both of the men called into service and of the families left behind. Every fighting man will feel more like fighting when he knows there is no danger of his relatives being left destitute. It is easier to battle for a country which has given concrete evidence of its solicitude for its soldiers and sailors.

The administration should have no trouble with congress when it presents a finished plan and shows how little it will cost compared with any other scheme that could be devised. Congress will be responsive because it will hear from millions of American homes.

The slogan should be: "An insurance policy for every American soldier and sailor!"

THE STRENGTH OF YIELDING.

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Learn to yield!

You often gain more by giving in than by holding on. Battles have been won by strategic retreats as well as by vigorous advances.

Of course, there are some things about which you ought to be inflexible, stubborn, and not-if-I-die-by-it. But such things are not nearly so plenty as one's pride is like to think.

Very often when you clash against some one whose views seem directly opposite to your own, if you will let him say his say, and give him free rein to explain what he means, you will discover that after all it is not so much some vital, essential principle that divides you as it is some phrase. Your quarrel is perhaps a conflict of catch words, not of convictions.

So be willing to listen. Be eager to grant all that can be granted. Be keen to find out how far you can agree with your adversary. For every useless issue you can cut out of a controversy will strengthen your side when it comes to the unavoidable differences.

By yielding you test and ascertain your opponent's strength. You also learn the spirit of his attack, the temper of him, and how dangerous or harmless he is.

Give way a little when you can, and see what he does with the advantage you give him.

By yielding you awaken nobleness. Finding no opposition in you your adversary finds it in himself; his own sense of justice, of courtesy and consideration is awakened.

This may be the gist of the command to "turn the other cheek." For if you truly love your neighbor you are more concerned in his "coming to himself" and realizing his own wrong than you are in triumphing over him.

The great secret of efficiency is to find the essentials and stand for them only. And the corollary of this is, not to make an issue of non-essentials.

The skilful mother avoids clashing with her child; she corrects his faults by letting him have his own way, and cleverly bringing him to see his folly.

The wise wife leads her husband by indirection. She gets her own way by yielding far oftener than another by contention.

By yielding you accumulate power for striking when the time comes. The long "watchful waiting" of the United States was not wasted. During this time a tremendous moral force was being generated.

"Strength," wrote William Sharp, "is built up out of forfeiture as well as of steadfastness, and the man or woman, cause or race, wins which an occasion can relinquish or forbear. Merely to be irreconcilable is merely to prefer the blank wall to the open road. The most inveterate and irreconcilable foes (which is but the rhetoric of those fevered with an epileptic nationalism) may, with common sense, yet be able to write with decency and courtesy upon the commnnweatlh."

And William Sharp was an Irishman!

WE'VE GOT HIS NUMBER.

In a recent article of the above title there was a misprint. It was stated that the Emperor William's age was 50 years and 6 months when the war began. It should have been 55 years and 6 months, as he was born in January, 1859. It will be seen that this correction will make the calculations correct.

A number of correspondents send me the following curious note also:

The word kaiser contains six letters. Append the number 6 to the alphabetical number of each letter in the word, add them up, and the total is 66. As follows:

K is the eleventh letter in the alphabet; join 6 to it and it makes 116; A is the first letter in the alphabet, with 6 it makes 16; in like manner I would be represented by 96; S by 196, E by 56; R by 186. These all added together make 666. Those who are curious in matters of prophecy point us therefore to verse 18, chapter 13, of the Book of Revelation, where it is said:

"Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man, and his number is six hundred threescore and six."

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES—At Bluffit-by-the-Sea. —By POP.

MENTAL SLAVERY.

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

There is slavery of the mind as well as slavery of the body. The latter form of slavery has been almost completely abolished from the civilized world. But mental slavery still is much in evidence.

Evenrybody is a mental slave who allows himself to be dominated in his thinking and his conduct by UNREASONING PREJUDICES. If he is blindly bitter against fellow men—as in matters of race, religion, or politics—he is not a free man but a SLAVE.

There are some things which arouse justifiably bitter feelings. There are some prejudices, grounded in intuitive moral standards, which all right-thinking men ought to have.

Every man ought to feel prejudiced, intensely prejudiced, against those guilty of broken faith, ruthless cruelty, malicious and wanton destruction of life or property. AGAINST WICKEDNESS OF EVERY KIND THERE IS INDEED REASON FOR PREJUDICE.

But to treat disdainfully another human being simply because he happens to belong to a particular race or religious denomination or political party is evidence not of right thinking, but of wrong-thinking—perhaps I should say of non-thinking.

We all of us know people who thus behave. Do we, by any sad chance, thus behave ourselves?

It is a question that everyone of us ought to put to himself. And the best way to get a decisive and honest answer to it is to anlyze our attitude toward persons whom we are ready to admit that we dislike.

Do we have any really valid reasons for disliking them? Or, if closely examined, is our hostile attitude determined solely by some such thing as the race to which they belong, the religious faith they hold, or the political party with which they are affiliated?

If this is the only ground we have for disliking them, are we behaving sensibly?

ARE WE BEHAVING LIKE MEN FREE TO THINK FOR THEMSELVES AND ACTUALLY THINKING FOR THEMSELVES?

Still more:

Are not our blind prejudices harmful to our own best interests and to the best interests of our country?

The persons whom we unreasonably dislike may be talented, thoughtful, truly worthy people, whom it would profit us to know intimately. We might learn from them how much that would help us to grow in wisdom and usefulness.

Our unreasoning prejudices, indeed, may go far toward accounting for the fact that we are perhaps finding it somewhat difficult to make a success of life. Certainly there are many men to whom, estimated merely on a bread-and-butter basis, unreasoning prejudices are costly.

But they are always most costly from the larger view of individual happiness and social solidarity. Show me a man of blind prejudices, and I will show you one who is neither as happy nor as good a citizen as he ought to be.

Blind prejudices to be sure, are hard things to get rid of. Yet once they are recognized as present, earnest effort to get rid of them should be made.

To uproot them it will be necessary to drill ourselves, as we have never drilled before, in independent thinking. We must become accustomed to reason for ourselves about all things of importance, to think them out slowly, carefully logically.

The more we strengthen our reasoning powers by regular exercise, the weaker will be the hold that prejudice has on us, and the more free mentally we shall become.

"MOVEMENTS."

Every little "movement" has a meaning of its own,
But some of them are mighty hard to find.
Twenty new ones every day, all of them full-blown,
And they're of every sort and every kind.
Concerning many movements we confess that we are green.
But there is one—we know just what it's for.
The pulling of the trigger is the movement that we mean—
The only one that's going to win the war.

BIDE'S GROUCH.

I tried to like that fellow Bide; I tried my best to meet him; upon a fellow craftsman's plane's the way I tried to greet him, because I like the boys who dig up humor for the solemn and trail the laughs on human nature right into their column. He seemed to be preoccupied; he talked as if his mind was weighing matters elsewhere, and didn't care to find the time to take on new friends, until I thought—oh, well, if that's the way he feels about it, let him go to ——. But when you know a fellow's line of trouble, how it makes you feel as if you owe him something money wouldn't take; for Dudley came up yesterday, beaming—in a whirl, and shook my hand and shook some more, then whispered, "It's a girl."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 16.—As a rule when the ocean traveler reached New York he begins to gurgle with delight at the well known and frequently lauded sky line. He sees the gilded dome of the World, the might spire of the Woolworth and the majestic heighth of the Singer building.

But not so John Brandless who arrived at the New York port the other day. He spoke only of the wild animal life of the great city and pointed out in person such wonders of nature as plaid alligators, cerese pythons, majenta elephants and polka dot zebras. Further he had the largest ache that any one head could hold.

A rather trifling faux pas brought about the zoological nightmare which Mr. Brandles suffered. He went aboard a vessel in the Hahamas in such a manner that no one noticed him and he made every arrangement to come to the states without the formality of paying his freightage.

After he had selected a quiet little spot down in the hold of the vessel far from noise and the possibility of observation he found that he had brought food but nothing to drink.

As he reflected over his situation he noticed a short distance from him the glint of glass bottles. He worked his way toward them and he opened one then another, and another and so on ad nauseum. It was Jamaica—the well known rum. His thirst became chronic.

When the ship began unloading the heaviest and dizziest portion of the cargo was Mr. Brandles. While waiting for an ambulance he sang several loud songs of the billowy sea, in the midst of which he would halt to place some sturdy seaman between him and some gaudy and unspeakable New York animal.

The husband was before Magistrate Cornell because his wife accused him of holding out on the weekly payroll. "Why your honor," shouted the husband, "that wife of mine has five hundred dollars right this minute in her stocking and yet she wants me to give up all the money to care for her."

The magistrate peered over his glasses at the complainant. "Madam," he said sternly, "you hear what your husband says. Is this true?"

"Why, judge," she stammered, "you can search me. "I don't—"

And right there the magistrate knew it was time to take up another line of testimony.

William Barrett Ridgeley, former U. S. comptroller, took a group of Wall Street friends which included George Graham Rice out to Bayside the other day to sail on his yacht. They cruised about for several hours and suddenly it was discovered that Rice was missing. The yacht was stopped and there was a fear that he might have fallen overboard.

Finally they saw a head bobbing up 100 feet back of the boat. It was Rice. When he climbed on deck he was in a bathing suit. He had pumped in for a swim about an hour before and the boat got out of his reach and he had been swimming after it all the time. "Why didn't you yell for help?" he was asked. "Well, everytime I would yell I would forget to swim and go under. I knew you'd miss me sooner or later."

Logic proves or disproves all things, but accomplishes not any of them.

A woman seldom throws at anything until she is so mad she can't even see straight.

A doctor may give a patient hope, but he charges for the time it takes to give it.

There may be a time for al things, but the wise man tackles only one thing at a time.

"HETTY"

HETTY WINS HER FIRST WAGE EARNING WAR IN WACO

BEGIN HERE

Hetty Anderson, 22, leaves Rogers after her mother's death, comes to Waco, and settles in a cheap boarding house, where she meets a rather fascinating woman, Mrs. Nell Brady, who has left her husband for "Billy" Matthews, a well-to-do man about town. When Billy takes Hetty out with him and Nell, he falls in love with Hetty and a scene with Nell follows. Nell goes back to her husband and Billy pursues Hetty's friendship while she works at Ranger's and later at the Bethlehem Machinery company. He takes her to Cameron park in his car on a picnic, where he tells her he loves her, but for the moment scouts marriage.

Hetty's desirability finally provokes Billy into a proposal of marriage, but he tells her that he cannot promise to be true to her after marriage, but will try to be. She leaves him in disgust.

Hetty conceived a strong dislike for her employer at the Bethlehem Machinery company, Durham, and the president of the company, Baker. The only civil person is the drummer, "Sunshine" Jackson.

Hetty impulsively offers her hundred dollars of insurance money to pay sanitarium fees for Joe Simmons, and makes the acquaintance of a little "business" girl, Alice Tarver, who timidly offers friendship.

Hetty goes to see Miss Patty Hadley, the stenographer whose illness made an opening for Hetty. She finds her almost the sole support of a large family.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Do you think you can be worth forty dollars to us, when you don't know the business?" he asked sarcastically, but the gleam of interest in his eyes was soothing to my pride.

"I know that I could if I were going to be here permanently, and worth more than that. I do not intend to work up in a position that does not pay at ealst that to begin with. Of course, I shall not be here after Miss Hadley is well again."

"Miss Hadley will not be back," he snapped. "She isn't well and will not be well again. The position is yours if you want it." He leaned forward at his desk again as if to dismiss me.

"Mr. Durham," I exclaimed, taking my fleeing courage in both hands. "Miss Hadley needs the position more than I. I wish you could see the family as I have seen it. The poor girl is almost the sole support of a big family. She would be heartbroken if she knew that you were taking her position away from her. She says she has worked hard for three years and has worn herself out in your employ. It is the least you can do to allow her to keep on wearing herself out."

I don't know where I got the courage, but the glint in his blue eyes made me forget that I was only a hired girl, who had nothing to do with him nor the business but to take his orders. I could not help remembering the desperate protest that little Patty Hadley had made.

"Bosh!" he exclaimed, cruelly, I thought. "Miss Hadley has tuberculosis and should never have gone to work in the first place. We kept her after she was past work just because we knew something of conditions. I am not so hard as you think me," he concluded belligerently.

"Tuberculosis!" I exclaimed with horror. "Oh, that is terrible!" I sat with my hands tightly clasped for a few seconds, while he continued to regard me with his calculating blue eyes.

"I am going to be very busy today and I would like to get this matter settled. Miss Hadley does not come back. We need a stenographer. You can have the place at forty dollars. Miss Hadley got fifty, largely because of her family conditions." He whirled away from me in his revolving chair but I still sat there, knowing myself dismissed.

"What—what is to become of her?" I asked, struggling to keep my voice calm.

"Oh, with Miss Hadley?" he jerked out over his shoulder. "We have already written to a sanitarium in El Paso. We are not quite sure of the details yet, but she will be taken care of. One of the boys will come in here as office boy. We haven't told him yet, but we feel some responsibility." He took up a pen and began to make figures on the margins of the sheet. I stumbled out of the room, by brain in a whirl.

The whole office was tense over the expected arrival of the great man. The afternoon was sultry, almost unbearably so, but everyone of us kept up a feverish activity. In the inside room, Mr. Durham paced restlessly up and down, occasionally dropping heavily into his revolving chair, which groaned under his weight.

Young Baker lighted cigarette after cigarette, coming to the door between our two offices as he did so, and looking anxiously but defiantly into the outer space. All of us dreaded the rare visits with which the great man favored us. Finally, when we had almost given up expecting him, he was upon us. I turned in my chair to look at the clock on the wall behind me, and he was standing there, having slipped up on his rubber-soled shoes. He was stripping off his yellow driving gloves, his black hat tucked under his arm, a can, necessary to him, hanging on his arm.

"Watching the clock, eh?" he growled. "We may get stenographers some day he will not, but I doubt it."

I flushed with resentment, but turned back to my machine without answering. There was nothing to say.

"Durham in?" he demanded, seeming to delight in torturing me.

"Yes, sir," I answered, without turning my head from my work.

He stamped toward the door, leaning rather heavily on his silver-headed cane. The massive back and the stubborn head set on square shoulders looked forbidding. I had no desire to cross swords with that man, but I knew that I should have to, sooner or later.

The powers that be were closeted for two hours, which made it nearly 6 o'clock. Jackson had not yet come in, but he was expected every minute. I listened with nervous intensity to the voices of the two, hard, domineering men, the one banking his superiority on money, the other on brains. It was no secret that Baker had an inferior education but that he was magically successful in all financial ventures was also no secret. Durham had arrived at his position as manager through sheer stick-to-itiveness and hard business sense. The two men had no love for each other, but a vast respect.

I had heard rumors, scarcely more than whispers, that the firm was rocking on its financial base. Through hard times or some fault of management, the success of the company was in jeopardy.

"Welcome, merry sunshine: Clear the darkened windows," a blithe voice behind me sang out. There was Jackson, the eagerly awaited. He came close and whispered, "What's the row? Everybody seems afraid to open his bean to me. Doggone it, I'd better stay in a pub if I can't come to home, sweet home without hearing the funeral march." His voice was mockingly aggrieved, but I could detect a shadow of real anxiety in his eyes. He jerked a thumb toward the closed door. "Bet you a nickel his Nibs is in there with Bull Durham, now, ain't he? Everybody puts the muffler on when the pillar of the church arrives."

"I think it has something to do with you," I whispered, with my eyes on the door. "Durham was looking at your sales sheets and told me to tell you he wanted to see you as soon as you came in."

"Without even washing my pretty little face?" he asked aggrievedly. Then turning serious suddeny, "Damned if I take any of their sass. I have wore out three pairs of shoes this month trying to squeeze orders out of blamed little holes where no business exists. They saddle the worst territory in Texas off on me and then expect my sales to be better than the guys with the fat territories."

He straightened his tie, pretended to powder his face, and then marched with a bold front to the door, opened it and passed in. Although it was time for me to go, I could not leave with the strain of the unfinished interview on my mind. My work finished, I invented things to do. I cleaned my typewriter and oiled it thoroughly, and then for want of something better to do, I wrote over and over, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party."

Bathing---Always A Luxury---
A HOT WEATHER NECESSITY

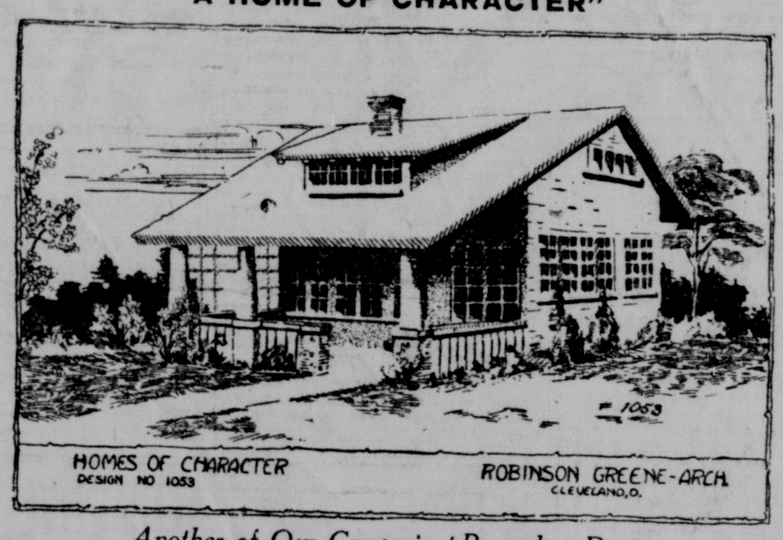

Had you ever thought of bathing as a luxury? Well, just consider what is more restful, more invigorating, than your bath. And in warm weather the daily bath is a hygienic necessity.

How important, then, that the bath tub and all the bath room accessories in your home are made to give the maximum, both of service and beauty. The luxury of bathing is materially marred if the plumbing is not "just right."

And because it is so important we have made plumbing our life business, and feel that we can serve you as well as anyone —better than most.

MRS. BUCHANAN STAR WITNESS IN CROUCH CASE

Special to The News.

Temple, July 16.—Public interest this week will center around the trial of J. C. (Carey) Crouch of this city which will be called in the district court at Belton Monday morning with District Judge F. M. Spann, presiding. Defendant is a brother of A. B. Crouch, president of the A. B. Crouch Grain company, whose failure in March of 1916 caused a tremendous sensation, not only locally, but over the entire state owing to the magnitude and ramifications of the concern's operations.

Mrs. Margaret Buchanan, former confidential secretary of A. B. Crouch is here for the purpose of giving testimony in the case. She left here shortly before the failure occured and in the course of her travels is said to have visited South America, Japan and Australia before here whereabouts were discovered. The defendant is represented by a battery of high class legal talent and the contest is to be bitterly waged.

Incidentally it is anticipated that some light may be thrown on modern methods of high finance as a number of forged bills of lading covering mythical cars of grain are alleged to figure in the crash. Carey Crouch is a Bell county product and the family is one of the oldest and most highly respected in this section. He stoutly affirms his innocence of any wrong doing and has the support of numerous friends who believe in him and will lend every assistance in his behalf. J. M. Crouch, the father is a retired farmer and a director of the City National bank of Temple.

BUYING UP WHISKEY IN BOND; PRICES UP

By the Associated Press.

Dallas, Tex., July 16.—A permapation of a national drouth whole sale liquor dealers here and in other cities throughout the state are said to be laying in large stocks of whiskey. It is said that one wholesale firm which does a large business in North Texas recently purchased $300,000 worth of bonded goods from several distilleries.

Prices of numerous drinks already are soaring in anticipation of a shortage of supplies. Small beer and whiskey glasses have been substituted for larger ones previously use at most bars.

FORMER OKLAHOMAN IS INSTANTLY KILLED; SHOOTING ACCIDENTAL

By Associated Press.

Houston, Tex., July 16.—S. D. Foreman, aged 20 years, formerly of El Reno, Oklahoma, was instantly killed last night when a bullet from his own pistol penetrated his left breast just after he had stepped from an automobile at the corner of Preston and aFnnin, having come to Houston from Goose Creek, where he had spent the last three days. Foreman was handing the pistol to C. J. Bryant of Houston, driver of the car, as payment for his ride to Houston, from Goose Creek, when the gun was fired. Bryant is being detained by the police pending the outcome of an inquest that is being held by Justice of the Peace J. M. Ray.

"It was an accident," said Bryant, when he was placed under arrest. When an officer inquired about the shooting Bryant immediately gave himself up and stated that the gun was in his hand when fired and that he did not even know the dead man.

Lester Crow, a fried of Foreman, who made the trip from Goose Creek, said he was sure the shooting was an accident. He also stated that Foreman had told him at noon that he was going to pay his fare to Houston at night with his gun, that he had brought with him from El Reno, Okla.

STATE FARM SPECIALIST CONDEMNS PROPOSAL TO CONSCRIPT FARM LABOR

By Associated Press.

Austin, July 16.—Plans of the war department to conscript the farm labor of Texas would seriously affect Texas according to T. C. Jennings, state farm specialist of the state department of labor. He today received a communication from W. J. Spillman, chief of the office of farm management of the federal department of agriculture advising that the war department is contemplating the conscription of the farm labor of the country and how it would affect Texas. In answering this communication, Mr. Jennings pointed out that there is now a decided scarcity of farm labor in the state besides several hundred thousand laborers will be needed by August 15 to pick the cotton crop and the situation was even now serious, as it would seem as if much cotton will be left in the fields for want of pickers.

THREE RICE GROWING STATES HAVE INCREASED ACREAGE SHOWS REPORT

Special to The News.

Beaumont, July 16.—The rice acreage increase this year in the three principal rice growing states—Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas—is about 83,000 acres, according to J. R. Leguenec, secretary of the Rice Millers' association. He estimates that the total acreage in the United States this year is 970,107 as compared with 879,366 in 1916—an increase this year of almost 100,000 acres.

Rice men believe the production this year, notwithstanding the increased acreage, will be far below that of the previous year, owing to damage from the continued drouth. It is said that in many instances irrigation plants had to stop pumping because of the presence of salt water in the canals, thus leaving the rice to burn under the scorching rays of the sun. This condition is said to prevail in various parts of Texas and Louisiana.

The building has been thoroughly remodelled in every particular at a cost of approximately $5,000.

VALLEY MILLS CROP OUTLOOK IS BETTER WITH NEW RAINS

Special to The News.

Valley Mills, July 16.—Crop conditions are more encouraging at present than they have been for some time. The fine rain of the fourth gave new life to all crops. Corn that was thought to be past redemption put on new life and will produce a small ear where none would have been, and the ear that formed small will grow larger and fill out to the end of the cob. As it is now some corn will be made.

Cotton is growing well and is fruiting. The small stalks are full of squares, blooms and small bolls. Boll weevils are not doing the damage that was thought they would do some weeks ago. The dry hot weather seems to have killed out the weevils to some extent. Cotton bids fair to produce well and if rain comes before it begins to suffer the cotton in this locality will yield a normal crop. Farmers are cultivating their cotton more this year than ever before.

The late plantings of milo maize, June corn and black-eyed peas are up and growing off like spring of the year. Sweet potatoes are not growing as they should. Turnip patches for fall and winter crops have been sown.

ALLEGED WHITE SLAVER MARRIES WOMAN IN THE CASE

Amid the somber surroundings of the county jail, and with a curious crowd witnessing the ceremony, H. E. Irish was Monday morning married to Miss Zena Kirkwood, Justice Giles P. Lester officiating.

Irish was confined in the jail on a charge of white slavery under the Mann act, and was alleged to have brought Miss Kirkwood from Parsons, Kansas, paying her way. Thirty minutes after the marriage ceremony Irish waived examination before United States Commissioner A. P. McCormick and was granted bond in the sum of $1,000. He had not given bond late Monday afternoon.

SENDS HELP TO HER SUFFERING FRIENDS IN CITY OF MEXICO

"TANLAC DID ME SO MUCH GOOD I KNOW IT'S WHAT THEY NEED" SAYS MISS ALVAREZ.

"Tanlac has done me a world of good and to show you what I think of it I have sent several bottles of it to friends in the City of Mexico, because I know it's what they need," said Miss Consuelo Alvarez, of 520 South Florence street, El Paso, Texas, recently.

"I suffered terribly from rheumatism for the past two years," she continued, "and the pains in my back would be so severe that at times I thought I would go distracted, and my kidneys gave me a good deal of trouble all the time. I suffered greatly from headaches and often would get so dizzy I would almost fall. My lower limbs would swell and I was awfully bloated about my body. When I would get up in the mornings my face would be swollen and puffed up so I could hardly see and I was in misery most all the time.

"I read so much in the papers here about the good Tanlac was doing others I decided to try it and it went right to the spot in my case, as I began to improve right from the start. My relief after taking Tanlac has been nothing less than marvelous, as I had tried several kinds of medicines before without getting any help. I am entirely over my rheumatism and the pains in my back have entirely left me. The swelling in my body and limbs and face have disappeared and I don't have any headaches or dizzy spells now at all. I am feeling just splendid and I am going to keep on taking Tanlac till I am certain my health is completely restored."

Fire at Rosebud Threatened Entire Residence Section—One Narrow Escape

Special to The News.

Rosebud, July 16.—Fire at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning completely destroyed the residence on Avenue B, owned by C. W. Meyers, and occupied by E. L. Green. Considerable apprehension was felt for several minutes as a strong south wind blew fire brands for three or four blocks over the principal residence part of the city. Hundreds of persons were on house tops in the wake of the fire brands with wet sacks, water buckets and brooms to keep the fire from spreading. Mr. Green does not know how the fire originated but probably started in the west room of the main part of the building. Mr. Green was sleeping in the southeast room and was only awakened just in time to escape alive. C. W. Meyers places his estimate of loss at $3,500, with $2,300 insurance, while Mr. Green gave his loss at $2,500, partially covered by insurance.

When Marriage Is a Failure

Surely marriage is a failure when its essential purpose, the raising of a family of children, proves impossible. In the childless home the married pair, though sometimes more or less unconscious of the fact, grow disappointed and lonely. Lacking the best tie to hold them together they are likely to drift apart, hence many separations and divorces.

If every wife, whose physical state prevents motherhood, would but try that great remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, there would be far fewer childless homes.

IN 1844 a Philadelphian started to make tools and supplies for dentists. His name was S. S. White.

WACO WINS IT BY 2 TO 1 AND SIMS WAS HERO

VAINLY WAITED FOR SEVEN LONG FRAMES FOR TEAMMATES TO AID HIM.

BY POP BOONE.

My friend, Young Mister Sims was the single-handed hero of the Monday battle between the Panthers and the Navigators. After waiting vainly for seven long frames for his teammates to get him a couple of runs that would win for him; after seeing men die on bases in six of these seven innings; after seeing Jesse James fan with two on and Leslie fan with two on and Buddie Tanner fan with two on—after witnessing the untimely languishing of nine Waco batters on the bases in seven frames, Young Mr. Sims took the matter into his own hands in the eighth, smashed a double against the left field fence and returned himself a winner over Dillinger 2 to 1.

My old compadre, Karl Bettl, with the Fort Worth Record, who witnessed the game, failed to see anything heroic in Sims' blow. To the Panther sport writer it was all Gerald Hayes' fault.

To Dillinger, the classy young left-hand pitcher for Jakey Atz, who pitched a remarkable article of ball in the pinches, Sims' blow was pure and unadulterated luck.

To Ellis Hardy Mister Sims' blow was a great surprise, no doubt. It was a most pleasant surprise, of course, but there can be no doubt that it was a surprise.

The Skipper was sure up against it on the play. I'll tell you all about it:

Jesse James, first up in the ninth, was nipped on his collar by a pitched ball. Malmquist, who had replaced Buddie Tanner when the shortstop was shooed by thumps, sacrificed. Grubb smashed a foul that bounced off his foot and went into the diamond. Dodd fielded the ball, but Hayes ruled it was a foul—which, of course, it was. Jakey Atz made a big holler, the burden of which was that "That ain't the way you called that one for us." Hayes told Jakey to run along and sell his papers or talk the matter over with Tanner or get a gold coke or something else. After things quieted down and Gerald had received his daily cussin' out, Grubb worried the left-hander out of a walk. Conwell grounded to third, advancing James and Grubb to third and second respectively.

With two on and two out, Vann came to bat. The catcher hadn't made his daily hit yet, and as all Texas league pitchers know, he was very much due. On the other hand, Sims had been looking very helpless before the left-hander's stuff on his other three appearances. There was but one thing to do—walk the catcher to get to the pitcher.

When Hardy saw what was coming off he went to wig-wagging all kinds of signals. Petty and Blunk and Harkins and several others got busy warming up and milling around.

A pinch hitter for Sims was the dope. But who was this pinch hitter to be? Zinn Hardly, for Zinn is a left-hand hitter and usually strikes from the other side of the plate against left-hand pitchers. True, he sometimes hits one at that. But he doesn't look at his best from that side. The Skipper had no pinch-hitter to call on. So he didn't call on any.

He had a big hunch.

When Vann trotted to first, Hardy again wig-wagged his excited force and Sims came to bat for himself.

The pitcher took a couple of swings at the ball and didn't look any better than on his previous showings. But on his third attempt he caught the old apple on the stem and it traveled. At that, Williams made an awful try for the ball, which hit the fence not far from the foul line and turned into a perfect double.

As I said before, Dillinger pitched a remarkable game in the pinches. The only difference between his work and Mister Sims was that Sims didn't allow himself to get into many pinches. The Fort Worth score came as a result of a barrel of horseshoes. Almost as big horseshoes as the two that beat it.

In the third, with one out, Stow hit a grounder past Conwell. James and Miller both tried for a stop, but the ball got through them, went to the fence and was scored a triple. Dillinger hit a high bounder to Tanner, but Buddie got hold of the ball so quickly that Stow was held on third while the pitcher was being tossed out at first. Little Bittle then hit a slow one to Conwell and just naturally beat it out, Conwell handling the ball cleanly and making a good throw. Although the crowd hollered a bit on the decision, Hayes was right on it—the runner was safe.

Of course, Stow scored on the play.

Sims was in only one other bad hole. This came in the seventh, when a scratch single by Bernsen and a scratch double by Williams put men on third and second with none out. Dodd grounded to Conwell and again the runner was held at third. Vann looked at the bench for instructions as to whether or not to walk Gray and the Skipper told him to "make him hit." Sims wasn't fond of that hittin' idea, so he struck Gray out. Stow was then walked purposely to get to Dillinger and Sims fanned the pitcher on three straight pitched balls.

OFFERED POSITION ON STATE EXAMINING BOARD

A position on the state summer normal examining board has been offered to County Superintendent R. L. Abbott of McLennon county, calling him to come to Austin at once, but Superintendent Abbott found it impossible to accept.

The work at Austin during the summer would have been pleasant, but as he is teaching in the Baylor summer school, which closes this week, and as several school matters in the county are pending, he decided not to accept.

TRYING TO STOP JUNK THEFTS IN WACO

Detective Bud Brandon Monday made another round of the junk shops of the city, in an effort to hold down the wholesale selling of all kinds of junk to dealers. Stringent measures are to be adopted in dealing with parties who enter houses, yards or barns to get junk, and also some dealers are to be cautioned to observe the regulations in buying the junk.

Ask your dealer for Kleen-O.—Adv.

Yessir! Matty seems to have made a man of him. For over forty years Cincinnati has been a ne'er-do-well in big league baseball. Old Cincy usually associated with the lowest in the league, too—the baseball bum. Now and then some manager with good intentions attempted to reform this vagabond of the diamond, but none ever wholly succeded. Cincinnati never achieved a pennant. Second place was the noblest effort—and that happened thirty-nine years ago, before he became incorrigible.

Just at present Matty has him straightened up and looking fine—the best in twelve years. Cincinnati is reformed, and is now a very classy looking ball team. He is mixing with high-class company—the first division boys—for the first time in fve years and promises to remain there.

Cincinnati's career began with the National league in 1876. The Reds finished last five times and seventh five times. They finished in third place on three different occasions only.

Billy Sunday has nothing on Matty.

SCHOOL ELECTIONS ARE PENDING IN COUNTY

Several bond elections are pending in the schools of McLennon county. Some of these are for one purpose and others for another.

One of the first school tax elections to be held is one at Hallsburg, July 28, to see about levying a tax of 20 cents for equipping the school building.

Then on August 11 an election will be held by the Gurley school on South Third street to see about bonding for $1,500 additional, to improve the school building.

Also on August 11 there will be an election in School District No. 20, near West, to determine whether there shall be levied a maintenance tax of 25 cents. Other elections are pending or talked of in some of the districts of the county.

Fiery Eczema and Skin Eruptions Readily Yield to This Old Remedy

Successfully Used for Fifty Years.

Eczema and similar skin troubles come from a disordered, impure condition of the blood, and they can only be cured by giving the blood a thorough cleansing, and removing from it all traces of impurity.

This is why S. S. S. has been used so successfully in hundreds of cases of Eczema and other skin eruptions. This wonderful remedy is without an equal as a blood purifier, being probably the oldest blood medicine on the market. It has been sold by druggists for fifty years.

Here are the Results of the Sworn-to Demonstrations of Franklin Thrift as Tested out all over the United States

LAST Friday, Franklin dealers everywhere were doing the same thing—measuring Franklin thrift by mileage on a single gallon of commercial gasoline. Our record was (32.9) miles per gallon.

Yesterday, we got a telegram from the Franklin factory, announcing the Grand National Average, confirmed by affidavits of prominent men in all localities where the tests were made.

In New Haven, Connecticut, a stock Franklin covered 82.8 miles on a single gallon of gasoline. That was the highest mileage.

Here you have the Franklin standard of thrift.

Think of the roads, the climate, the weather, all of these cars experienced! Then, think of the significance of such a nation-wide test.

It means, as a car for thrift, the Franklin stands alone among all fine automobiles.

Only a fine car can show such results.

What's Back of it All

Only by the elimination of 177 heavy and troublesome water-cooling parts and complicated mechanism everywhere, can gasoline-consuming friction and drag, wear and tear, be minimized.

Only scientific-light-weight construction and fine materials, rightly distributed, allow a car to put a stop to fuel waste.

More than Miles per Gallon

This easy running of the Franklin means efficiency—waste cutting—all along the line.

Take tires—Franklin owners report an average of over 10,000 miles in a five-year period. Easy, buoyant, gasoline-saving operation is responsible for this record.

Depreciation—Find a used Franklin for sale. Compare the Franklin re-sale price with the prices other fine used-cars bring, in proportion to their first cost. If gasoline is lasting, the car is long-lived. The same wearing drag that boosts the gasoline bill also boosts the repair bill.

Whenever you come to the conclusion that the next automobile you buy should deliver a dollar's worth of efficiency for every dollar you invest, then you are ready to investigate the Franklin.

MARKETS

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

New Orleans, July 16.—Rains in Texas and Oklahoma created a wave of selling in the cotton market here today under which prices fell 57 to 79 points in the first half hour of business. The tone on the opening was weak and the market had little or no support from any source. Foreign political news had an unsettling effect.

The decline on the active months was widened to 75 to 80 points but toward noon a steadier feeling and increased demand developed. Prices recovered partially and stood 57 to 61 points under Saturday's finals.

Claims that the dryest sections of Texas had not received rains needed steadied the market in the afternoon and at 1:30 prices showed a net loss of 50 to 58 points. Closed barely steady at a net decline of 77 to 81 points.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 16.—There was a severe break in the cotton market early today. With the exception of July, which opened unchanged because of strong local conditions, the list was from 35 to 52 points under Saturday's close. The break resulted largely from reports of good rains over the belt, particularly in the southwest, where they were badly needed. Reports from numerous points in Texas showed very good rains. A less optimistic interpretation of the European political situation also operated against the early market. October later sold off to 25.25 and December to 25.20, representing net declines of 61 to 62 points, and the market after the opening continued heavy around the lowest figure.

Later selling operations carried October down to 25.10 or a net loss of 71 points but rallies occurred from this figure, based on reports that the Texas rains were mostly in locations outside the drouth sections. October sold up to 25.34 and was steady at noon, with shorts chief buyers, partly on further indefinite peace reports.

The early afternoon market was rather quiet with October around 25.37. The undertone was steady but owing to the pressure of further rains in the southwest there was no support from outside sources. Closed steady.

GRAIN.

Chicago, July 16.—Corn prices averaged higher today, influenced by weather conditions unfavorable to growth. Fears were expressed that the crop as a whole was already so late that chances for damage from early autumn frosts had been greatly enlarged. On the other hand, continued peace talk hindered aggressiveness on the part of bulls. Opening prices which ranged from the same as Saturday's finish to ¾c higher, with September at $1.59½ to $1.60 and December at $1.12¼ to $1.12⅝ were followed by a material advance all around and then a reaction that wiped out most of the gains.

Later the market hardened and the close was steady, with July at $2.05½ and September at $1.95½.

Assumptions that wheat will be brought under absolute governmental control kept trade in that cereal at a minimum, with prices showing no great change. First transactions varied from ¼c decline to 1c advance, with September at $1.95.

Corn—Reports which were construed as showing that the reichstag was defying Emperor William and his generals led afterward to a sharp break. The close was nervous at ⅜c to ⅝c net decline, with September at $1.58⅞ to $1.59 and December $1.09¼@1.09¼.

Promising field advices made oats relatively easy.

Selling of lard weakened all of the provision list.

DICKY DIPPY'S DIARY

By Sinnott

YOU MAY FIRE WHEN READY IS WACO'S ANSWER

NOTHING NOW LEFT UNDONE FOR ARRIVAL OF 35,000 TO 42,000 GUARDSMEN.

Troops of the National Guard of Michigan and Wisconsin will reach Camp MacArthur in Waco probably early in August, and some of them may arrive before that time.

The order for mobilizing the troops has gone out, and they are being concentrated for a start towards Waco, where they will go into training. In the meantime the camp here will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible, so as to be ready for them when they arrive. It is believed in some quarters, in fact, that several companies of the men may be used in doing some of the preliminary work of putting the camp site in condition to receive the men, though this has not been verified, and is speculation; some things which have been said and done rather give color to the belief, however.

From 35,000 to 42,000.

Definite information as to the number of National Guard troops coming to Waco is not yet available, but the number probably will range between 35,000 and 42,000 men. There will be a civilian accompaniment of a large number of persons in addition. It has been stated that there are 30,000 in the Michigan national guard and 12,000 in the Wisconsin division, but these numbers are subject to some change.

Plenty of warning will be given before the men are actually sent to Waco, and in the meantime every possible effort will be made to get everything in readiness for them. Major J. B. Hawley began Monday the work of laying off the water system of Camp Mac Arthur, but there is still some work to be done in the topographic survey which is being made. The water can be put in immediately following the survey and the platting in that connection. Also the sewer system can be put down in quick order.

Cotton Belt Busy.

The Cotton Belt railroad has quite a lot of material on hand and rushing towards Waco by rail, and will this week begin laying tracks to the camp site from a connection with the main lines west of the city. The Cotton Belt has agreed to build the line and to either operate it as its own or to take in the other lines.

The right of way is being rapidly secured.

The construction department is expected to reach Waco in a short time to begin the erection of the tent quarters of the guardsmen, but there will be a great deal of wooden construction on this phase of the work, as the quarters, with the exception of the top, will be nearly all lumber. In this connection estimates are that there will be more than 200 separate wooden buildings.

Also a base hospital will be erected at a cost of $15,000, this hospital having a separate site of more than 90 acres of land adjoining the Deane addition and near to the Central Texas Baptist sanitarium. This base hospital will contain 750 to 1000 beds.

Shonk in Waco.

Capt. H. B. Shonk of the quartermaster's department is in Waco ready for the activities which are to open up, and has been a busy man since his coming. He will have the matter in his department worked up properly when the time for action comes in connection with the movement of troops.

Steps have also been taken to prepare for an aviation school, for which Waco is bidding, but no announcement has been made on this matter as yet. A board from Washington soon is to visit Texas and Waco with other points which are suggested in this conection.

The Chamber of Comerce hmas done all that the government has asked, and already has secured leases on large bodies of land which is needed. The government has leased nearly 1300 acres of land for the camp site alone, and probably will want several thousand for maneuver and drill grounds.

AUTO THIEVES ARE SEIZING EXTRA TIRES

It has become hazardous for owners of machines to stop cars and leave them long night or day if they have extra tires tied on the back of the machines. FIREMEN LOOKING FOR FALSE ALARM PARTIES

False alarms were turned in Monday and also Sunday, and firemen were of the opinion that somebody is going to get pinched on this charge pretty quick unless there is a change of tactics.

CHILDREN HATE PILLS, CALOMEL AND CASTOR OIL

IF CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED, GIVE CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious California Syrup of Figs. Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless fruit laxative handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50c bottle of California Syrup of Figs, which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by California Fig Syrup Company. Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Have No Fear

That the regular use will necessitate continuance of

DR. TUTT'S LIVER PILLS

because their action improves the digestion and eliminates the bile which in turn acts as a proper laxative to the Bowels, correcting Constipation.

How to Overcome Foot Troubles

Unless a person has actually suffered with tired, aching, burning feet or painful corns or calluses, they cannot appreciate the misery that such afflictions bring.

Reports now show that over 90 per cent of the American people suffer from some form of foot troubles and modern footwear is said to be causing an alarming increase in this percentage. Therefore, the following should prove of special interest to readers.

Recently in the treatment of these foot troubles by patients using Ice-Mint these distinctive features were noticeable. Tired aching, burning and swollen feet invariably become cool, easy and comfortable after the first application, while in the treatment of corns calluses, it was noticed that after a few nights' application, the corn or callus had a tendency to loosen, and in a short time could easily be lifted out with the fingers—root and all—leaving the surrounding skin in normal, healthy condition.

This, together with the fact that Ice-mint costs little and is so easy and pleasant to apply—and is absolutely harmless—is no doubt responsible for the high endorsement given it by Specialists as the surest, safest and most effacious treatment for distressing foot troubles.

When you stop to consider that the simple, pleasant process of rubbing a little Ice-Mint on the foot at night will shortly rid one of every painful corn or callus, and will keep the feet cool, comfortable and rested even on the hottest days, it is easy to understand its great popularity and why it is now used in nearly every American home. Anyone suffering from foot troubles is advised to give Ice-Mint a trial. There is nothing better.—Adv.
